SURVEY

A Journal of Soviet and East European Studies

No. 68

JULY 1968

The current issue contains a section on the conditions of reporting from the Soviet Union by Moscow correspondents, covering the whole period of Soviet history from 1917 to the present day. Contributors to this symposium include the correspondents of the Manchester Guardian, the Christian Science Monitor, the Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung, the Corriere della Sera, Newsweek and others. Another section deals with current developments in Czechoslovakia and Poland; it includes analysis in depth, eyewitness reports, and documents. Leonard Schapiro writes on Russia since Khrushchev and Alfred Grosser on Franco-Soviet relations. The background and preparations for the international communist meeting in Moscow and its prospects are discussed by Roger Salloch. Daniel Weissbord describes in an extensive review the unpublished novel by Alexander Solzhenitsyn, The Cancer Ward.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION : £2 or $6
