In the present volume an attempt is made to lay before the readers the full history of the Himalayan belt from the NEFA to Ladakh, from the days of remote antiquity to the middle of the present century, in order to enable them to understand the Sino-Indian border problem in its correct perspective.

Those who attach importance to history as the essential background to present day issues will find this volume to be extremely useful, indeed the first of its kind, in understanding the Sino-Indian Border Question as it developed from 1950 to 1962.
