

THE WAR IN BOSNIA-HERZEGOVINA

Ethnic Conflict and International Intervention

Steven L. Burg and Paul S. Shoup

"At last we have a book that makes sense of the savage Bosnian conflict. Burg and Shoup's study is thorough, balanced, and convincing. Using sources rarely consulted, they give a full picture of the political, military, diplomatic, and media aspects of the 1992-95 war in Bosnia—why it started; how it was fought; and what ended it. American actions are fully and fairly delineated. The maps, tables, and statistical data are invaluable and well presented. The book can be highly recommended to foreign policy specialists and the common reader alike for its scholarship, policy analysis, and common sense. It is likely to be the definitive study of the war in Bosnia for some time to come."

—Ambassador Herbert S. Okun

"There is no better book on the war in Bosnia-Herzegovina. . . . It is both a highly readable chronicle and a painstaking analysis of the many efforts by foreign powers, West and East, to intervene in the conflict, some for their own purposes, others for the most selfless humanitarian motivations. . . . Burg and Shoup have illustrated their account with 33 specially drawn maps that clearly reveal the course and dimensions of the Bosnian tragedy. In this and in many other ways, theirs is a major accomplishment."

—Richard H. Ullman, Princeton University

"The most lucid, comprehensive and balanced account yet written of the trials of Bosnia and the American role in them."

—Michael Mandelbaum, The Johns Hopkins University
